Trinity School.

NOTE.

The chief purpose of this list is to meet the wants of the minister as a student of the Bible. Although primarily intended for Presbyterian ministers, it is denominational only in a few instances. It presupposes the possession of such books as Van der Hooght's Hebrew Bible, Gesenius' Hebrew Lexicon, Green's Hebrew Grammar (1889), Westcott and Hort's Greek Testament, the Old Testament Apocrypha, Winer's Grammar of New Testament Greek, Young's Analytical Concordance, and Cruden's Concordance. With one exception it has been restricted to works in the English language. The books are placed under the different heads alphabetically by authors, except in the case of the commentaries and histories, which are arranged topically.

Devotional works and books of sermons are not included in the list. Of the former, Goulburn's "Thoughts on Personal Religion," and Phelps' "Still Hour" are recommended; and of the latter Robert South, F. W. Robertson, Alexander Maclaren, and John Ker. A number of alternate books have been put in brackets.
