

THE BIBLICAL REPERTORY
AND
PRINCETON REVIEW.

INDEX VOLUME

FROM

1825 TO 1868.

PHILADELPHIA :

PETER WALKER, 1334 CHESTNUT STREET :

CHAS. SCRIBNER & CO., NEW YORK; REV. A. KENNEDY, LONDON, ONTARIO ;

REV. WILLIAM ELDER, ST. JOHN, NEW BRUNSWICK ;

REV. ROBERT MURRAY, HALIFAX, N. S. ;

AND TRÜBNER & CO., LONDON.

1871.

1862. The Matter of Prophecy.
 1863. Date of the Book of Chronicles.
 1864. Davidson's Introduction to the Old Testament—
 Modern Philology.
 1865. The Structure of the Old Testament.
 1866. Relations of India with Greece and Rome—Dr.
 Williams's New Translation of the Hebrew Prophets.
 1867. The Position of the Book of Psalms in the Plan of the Old Testament—The Hebrew word Yashath.

GREGORY, DANIEL SEELY, is a native of the town of Carmel, Putnam county, New York, and was born on the 21st of August, 1832. The name of his great-grandfather Elnathan Gregory, 1757, stands first of that name as a graduate of the College of New Jersey, and Daniel Seely, 1857, is at present the last. After graduation, and while a student at the Seminary, he acted as Tutor in Rhetoric in the Session 1859-60, when he completed his course at the Seminary. After licensure he settled as pastor at Galena, Illinois, but was driven eastward by an attack of ague in 1863. He then accepted the charge of the Second Church of Troy, New York, where his labours were very greatly blessed, and several hundred added to the membership of the church. In 1867 he was induced to accept a call to the Third Congregational Church of New Haven, Connecticut, but the climate brought upon him a recurrence of the disease which had lodged in his system, and in 1869 he removed to South Salem, New York, his present field of labour. The articles he wrote for the Repertory excited more than ordinary interest at the time of publication. They were,

1866. The Preaching for the Times.
 1868. The Pastorate for the Times—Studies in the Gospels—
 Matthew the Gospel for the Jew.

HAGEMAN, JOHN FRELINGHUYSEN, Counsellor-at-law, was born in the village of Harlingen, in Somerset county, a few miles north of Princeton, New Jersey, where his father, Dr. Abraham P. Hageman, a practising physician, lived and died. He was graduated at Rutgers College in 1836, and read law with Judge Field and Governor Vroom until he was admitted to the bar in 1839. He opened a law office in Princeton, where he has resided and pursued his profession until the present time. In 1850 he was a member of the Legislature of the state, having been elected from the county of Mercer, on general ticket, to the House of Assembly. Since 1851 he has been a Ruling Elder in the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, and a Trustee of the Theological Seminary of the same place. He has been accustomed to write for the secular papers, and for eight years from 1859, especially during the war, he, with other gentlemen, contributed to the editorial department of the Princeton Standard.

In 1862 he was nominated by Governor Olden to the Senate, for Prosecutor of the Pleas for the county of Mercer. The disquieted state of the country at that time gave increased importance to this office, especially at the capital of the state, and he accepted the appointment, and held the office for the term of five years, when he declined a re-nomination tendered by Governor Ward. The celebrated trial of Charles Lewis in 1863, who was convicted and executed for the murder of James Rowand of Princeton—a remarkable case of circumstantial evidence, which was published in pamphlet; and the several bribery indictments against members of the Legislature, and of its lobby in 1866, were among the most important and exciting criminal cases which occurred during his term. While holding this official relation to the state, he and all the other Prosecutors in the state were interrogated by the Corresponding Secretary of the New York Prison Reform Association, on the subject of the Administration of Criminal Law. He and Courtlandt Parker, Prosecutor of Essex county, were the only ones who responded, and their responses were published in the Special Report of that Association in 1867. It was in reference to that Report that he contributed, by request, an article for this Review:

1868. Prisons and Reformatories.

HALL, BAYNARD RUSH, was the son of Dr. John Hall, an eminent surgeon in Philadelphia. He was a wealthy man, and died when his son was four years old, and only a small portion of the property left him by his father ever came into his possession. He was born in Philadelphia in 1798, and commenced his collegiate course in the College of New Jersey, but completed the course at Union College, from which he graduated with distinguished honour in 1820. His relatives wished him to study law, but his own inclination was for the ministry, and he entered the Seminary at Princeton in the fall of the same year. He had at the age of twenty-two married a Miss Young of Danville, Kentucky, and as soon as he left the Seminary he set out for the West, and obtained a Professorship in the University of Indiana, at Bloomington. He seems to have left the West in 1831, and till 1838 was stated supply of the church at Bedford, Pennsylvania, and also taught an