THOMAS LEIPER JANEWAY, D.D., LL.D.,

Son of Rev. Jacob Jones and Martha Gray (Leiper) Janeway, was born Feb. 27, 1805, in Philadelphia, Pa. His preparatory studies were pursued in schools in Philadelphia. He united with the Second Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia at the age of nineteen. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania with the first honors of his class in 1823. He then spent one year in further study, entering the Seminary at Princeton in 1824 and graduating after taking the full three years' course in 1827. He was licensed by the Presbytery of Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1827. He spent a year after his graduation as a tutor in the Western Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa. He was ordained by the Presbytery of Elizabethtown, Nov. 3, 1829, and at the same time installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rahway, N. J. This relation was dissolved Nov. 17, 1840, he having received a call to the North Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, over which he was installed Dec. 8th of the same year. He continued the pastor of this church until March 6, 1854. During this time he was largely instrumental in establishing the North Tenth Church. From Nov. 1, 1855, to Aug. 2, 1861, he was pastor of the church at Kingston, N. J. He then returned to Philadelphia to take up his work as corresponding secretary of the Board of Domestic Missions, which position he held from 1861 to 1868. Since that time he resided in Philadelphia without charge, interesting himself in church work and in benevolent and philanthropic enterprises. He died Sept. 14, 1895, in Philadelphia, of no particular disease other than old age, in his 91st year. He received the degree of D.D. from Princeton College in 1850 and was also honored with the degree of LL.D. Dr. Jane-way was chosen President of the college at Cannonsburgh, Pa., in 1857, but declined the position. He was a trustee of Lafayette College from 1847 to 1852, and of Princeton Theological Seminary from 1861 to 1865. He published the "Life of Jacob Jones Janeway," beside writing many pamphlets. He was for a time a trustee of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

He was married Oct. 25, 1825, at "Fancy Hill," Gloucester Co., N. J., to Miss Abby Blackwood Howell, who died April 1, 1885. Two sons and two daughters survive him.

JOHN GOTTLIEB MORRIS, D.D., LL.D.,

Son of Johann and Barbara (Myers) Morris, was born Nov. 14, 1803, at York, Pa. He united with the Lutheran Church of Mt. Jackson, Va., at the age of eighteen. He was prepared for college under the tuition of James Steen and Samuel S. Schmucker and graduated from Dickinson College in 1823. For two years afterwards he continued his studies in Nazareth, Pa., and under S. S. Schmucker in Virginia. He entered the Seminary at Princeton in 1825, remaining there less than a year. He was licensed Oct. 16, 1826, by the Lutheran Synod of Maryland and Virginia, and then for a short time was a student in the Lutheran Seminary at Gettysburgh, Pa. He was ordained by the Lutheran Synod of Maryland and Virginia, Oct. 15, 1827, and at the same time installed pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Baltimore. This relation lasted the unusual period of thirty-three years, being dissolved Aug. 1, 1860. He was librarian of the Peabody Institute, Baltimore, from 1860 to 1864, preaching frequently during this period. He supplied the Third Lutheran Church of Baltimore from 1861 to 1867. He was for a time lecturer on biology in Pennsylvania College, Gettysburgh, Pa., and on pulpit elocution and Bible Science in the Lutheran Seminary at Gettysburgh. He resided during most of his life in Baltimore and died at Lutherville, near that city, Oct. 10, 1895, of old age and general debility, when he had almost completed his 92d year. Dr. Morris was at one time librarian of the Maryland State Historical Society and was president of that society and of the German Historical Society at the time of his death. From 1831 to
